'It is the principle of the thing we object said he, "and not a matter of the money. The first examination to issue certificates was held last December, before the Legislature met. The movement was started by the Baggagemen's Association, and the State Board of Health agreed that, to those who held certificates, certain privileges would be granted in the shipment of bodies of those who died from contagious diseases. There was no law to justify such an examination, and the granting of these privileges, so when the Legislature met oill was introduced by the association which was intended to legalize the acts of that bill which required a fee of $3 each year for a renewal of the certificate. A number of undertakers objected to this, as we believe that if we got the certificate once it should be good for all time, just as a physician's diploma is good. We opposed the bill and then the committee pushing it came to us and proposed that we get together and draw up a bill that would suit us all. We did this ernoon, from 2 to 5 o'clock, at St. Paul's and then all went in together to try to sehouse, given by the Children's cure the passage of the bill, but failed After the Legislature adjourned Dr. Hurty went ahead with the plan. We don't object in the slightest to an examination for competency. and the state board has the right to order such an examination, but a man who hold one of these certificates, no matter how barely he may have passed the examination, is entitled to more privileges than a man who is much more competent and who never would take the examination. If a barely competent man holds a certificate, no mat ter how close he might have come to failing to pass the examination, he can ship a body of one who died of a contagious disease much easier than one who does not have the certificate. 'It does not seem right that an incompetent man should be permitted to ship a body in a pine box if he wants to, simply because he has paid $5 and has a certificate, when a thoroughly competent man may be required to have a hermetically sealed casket and do a number of things

He then said that he had not agreed to anything of the kind, but that he would give us receipts for the first payment so that we would not have to make more payments. We thought that he figured out that he was in a box and then when it struck him that those who had paid their money would protest if we got ours free he would have to take it back. There were six or eight of us there that day and we all understood his proposition to be that way, and so did our attorney. We decided then we would not pay it, for we did not know whether such an arrangement would be carried out, and, anyway, it was the right to charge us a fee without

A VIGOROUS PROTEST AGAINST CITY REDUCING ITS WIDTH.

Handled by the Board of Works.

These are busy times for the Board of Works. Not only was there a long, active meeting held yesterday morning, but the office of the board was visited during the day by an unusual number of people anxious to be informed as to the many proposed new street improvements. Most of the callers the Board of Works for 10 o'clock this were men living along Northwestern avenue and the old Michigan road, in the northwestern part of the city, and all of them apof narrowing of the roadway. It has been the intention of the board to pass upon a petition in the near future reducing the width of that part of the highway within the boundary lines of Indianapolis from one hundred feet to sixty-six feet, in order to proceed with the work of paving the sidewalks with cement and curbing the road on each side. Until a certain legal width is agreed upon it is impossible to take any action in regard to the improvement. Many of the people living in the vicinity of Crown Hill object to narrowing the road to less than eighty-five feet.

MAYOR'S CABINET MEETS. Water Works and Track Elevation

Questions to Be Taken Up. At the meeting of Mayor Taggart's Cabinet, vesterday morning, several important propositions came up for discussion, notably, the water-works contract and the contemplated elevation of railroad tracks. While nearly all of the members of the Cabinet look upon the purchasing of the water-works plant by the city as highly improbable, they all agreed that the matter should be given very careful consideration, and it was decided to take up the matter and push it to some conclusion the first of next week. In reference to the elevated tracks, the mayor announced that he had called a meeting of the City Council and gone into at length. The mayor said that the city engineer had been making some preliminary investigations in regard to the matter. The question of the barricading of the Union Station was raised, and resulted in a communication being sent to the Board of Safety requesting that action be taken towards the abatement of this inconvenience to the city's traffic President Mack, of the Safety Board, said

The legal status of the city's contract with the New Telephone Company is now being examined by Assistant City Attorney Bell, who is of the opinion that the contract is invalid. #### THE MUSIKVEREIN CONCERT The Last of the Season Was a Very Successful Onc.

The last concert of the Musikverein for this season was given last evening before a large audience of members, but it was so good that it is a matter of regret it was not open to the public that many who were not there might have been present. Mr. Ernestinoff has certainly brought his chorus and orchestra to a high degree of proficiency in the short time since the Musikverein was organized. The parts, vocal and instrumental, are well balanced, and there

There was an extreme delicacy and sensitiveness mingled with such fine phrasing and expression that the audience duly appreciated. Immediately following the "Menuet," by Bocherini, was played, and the applause for the two demanded and received a response. Mr. Ernestinoff had the men repeat a part of the "Menuet." The men's chorus sang without accompaniment and the ladies' choir sang with accompaniment, both showing proticiency. It was for the mixed chorus and orchestra to present two altogether pleasing numbers-'An den Fluessen Babylons," by Gounod, and "Die Sternenwelt," by Milde. Both are melodious compositions, and the full beauty was brought out. The waltz movement of the last gave a degree of piquancy which well suited the words, and the manner of its singing was charming. An English translation of the German text on the programme would have been appreciated by the arge number of English speaking members of the club. The opening number, everture to Dame," by Suppe, gave a foretaste of the excellence of the concert. A number that was well played was the "Evening Song and Prayer." composed by Alice Barus Lieber. While it is pretty at a first hearing, it grows better liked as one hears it again and again. The Musikverein has reason to feel gratified at what it has accomplished thus far. After the programme there was the usual

These boys confessed to stealing shoes from a dealer on West Washington street and in the story related to Judge Cox they implicated

In Favor of the Justices. Judge McMaster, of the Superior Court, yesterday decided the mandamus cases in which Justices of the Peace Hay and Clark were defendants, in favor of the justices. In one of the cases Albert Fithian was a defendant in a replevin suit brought before Justice of the Peace Hay. He filed a petition for a change of venue from Hay, which was refused on the ground that he had failed to pay certain costs. Fithian began mandatory proceedings in the Superior Court to compel Hay to grant the change of venue. In the meantime Justice Hay had proceeded with the trial of the replevin suit, Fithian's attorney held that, under the new law regulating the justice of the peace system. Hay was not entitled to the costs claimed by him. The attorney representing Hay filed a de murrer to Fithian's complaint and Judge McMaster yesterday sustained it. The court held that the ruling of Justice Hay on Fithian's affidavit for change of venue was a judicial act and the Superior Court had no power to compel the justice to grant a change of venue, especially after he had disposed of the case before him. The action against Magistrate Clark was similar to the Hay case and the court's ruling was of a
